

Work health and safety plan for COVID-19

This plan outlines our commitment to providing a safe and healthy work environment for all employees, clients, and visitors.

What are the symptoms?

The symptoms of Coronavirus range from a mild cough to pneumonia and in severe cases can lead to death. People who have coronavirus typically experience some or all of the following symptoms:

- fever;
- flu - like symptoms such as cough, sore throat and fatigue; and
- shortness of breath.

It is important to seek immediate medical advice if the illness quickly becomes worse or if any of the following symptoms occurs:

- shortness of breath;
- chest pain;
- confusion or sudden dizziness;
- persistent vomiting.

How is it spread?

Coronavirus is spread from person-to-person through:

- Close contact with an infected person;
- Contact with droplets from an infected person's cough or sneeze; and
- Touching surfaces or objects (like doorknobs and tables) that have cough or sneeze droplets from an infected person and then touching your mouth or face.

What can be done to stop the spread of coronavirus?

Everyone should practice good hygiene to protect against infections. Good hygiene includes:

- Washing hands with soap and water;
- Using a tissue and cover your mouth when you cough or sneeze;
- Avoid touching your face
- Avoiding close contact with others, such as touching.
- Regularly disinfection hands

Reporting and Notification of COVID19

- If there is a confirmed or probable diagnosis of COVID-19 infection in a person who is part of our workplace, VIC Health will be notified by the medical professional who confirms the diagnosis and the laboratory that completed the test.

Workers' responsibilities in relation to COVID-19

- Workers have a duty to take reasonable care for their own health and safety and the health and safety of other persons in the workplace.

- What does a worker do if they test positive for COVID-19?
- VIC Health will contact you if you have a positive test for COVID-19. You must self-isolate and follow the instructions of health authorities. You should inform your supervisor of your diagnosis and you must not attend work.
- VIC Health will contact your employer, if required, for the purpose of contact tracing and will advise on what actions are required to protect other workers who may have had close contact with you.
- When can a worker return to work if they have COVID-19?
- Your health care provider will advise you when you are no longer infectious and can return to work.

What should a worker do if they have had close contact with someone who has tested positive for COVID-19?

- VIC Health will undertake contact tracing. This involves identifying people who have had close contact with someone with confirmed COVID-19 infection. If you are considered a close contact, you will be directed to self-quarantine and provided with information to prevent the further spread of infection.
- People who are not close contacts do not have to go into quarantine but should be alert to the signs and symptoms of COVID-19, monitor their health and continue to practice recommended social distancing and hygiene measures.

When can a worker return to work after self-quarantine?

- If you have self-quarantined for 14 days without any symptoms, you can return to work. If you need a medical certificate you should see your GP. If you have tested negative for COVID-19 during this period, you must remain in quarantine for the full 14 days. You should seek medical attention immediately if you develop symptoms while in self-quarantine.

What happens if a worker develops symptoms while they are in self-quarantine?

- If you develop symptoms while you are in self-quarantine, you should seek medical attention immediately from your GP or a Fever Clinic. Call ahead to let the doctor or clinic know you are under quarantine so they can prepare for your arrival. If you are tested for COVID-19, you must remain in quarantine while waiting for the test results. If your test comes back negative, you are still required to complete the rest of your quarantine period. If you test positive for COVID-19 infection you will be required to self-isolate.
